

When I was about 4 or 5 years old my family had just moved into a new house, a house where my moms cousin had lived there previously before us. My moms cousin had lost her daughter Nicole in a drunken car accident not to long before we had moved into the house.

My mom took my brother and I to go to the grocery store while my dad stayed behind to clean up the new house. So, he begins cleaning the kitchen. A fork drops out of nowhere, so he picks it up..and sets it on the counter when it goes flying across the living room.

In this same house over the 6 years we had lived there we have seen shadows.. tv's had turned off.. lights would be turned on and doors would be opened. Could this be Nicole?