

Hi. I work as a private caregiver. An elderly woman I'm helping to care for in her own home has spirits, I like to think of them as guardian spirits here to look over the elderly woman. I've known the elderly woman and her family for about 15 years...I cared for the woman's husband back then. Her husband had that gift of sensing paranormal. He would talk to and see spirits around himself or while out for a car ride....I myself have certain paranormal sensitivity and have had my experiences with the supernatural realm. Getting back to the husband, it was about three months before he passed, the spiritual activities increased in the home. I began to take photos around in the room when he would interact. I captured orbs within the room on several occasions. Sadly the man passed away at home in their bed. I'll always remember that moment. I was there along with his wife and children. The day of his passing the spirits were so active, like nurse maids caring for a new birth, but in preparation for his dieing. I'll never forget that moment he took his last breath, I was hit by such a force of energy that passed thru my entire body....I believe it was the spirits that were here to carry him home. It was that evening when he passed...the room was dimly lit. We were all so very sad knowing he was passing away, he was a good man. He's not been the first client I've cared for to pass away. But, he's the first one I was so blessed by the spirits to be given the experience to see the soul assend. It was no emotion I could ever explain. So, now getting back to the present day, and to his wife which I'm now caring for. Unfortunately, the woman is going thru the same disease as the husband did alzhimers. The couple was like two peas in a pod, neither was ever away from the other but only for a second. I feel and see the spirits gathering in the home again, but this time they're for the woman. One of the spirits here I believe is her husband, he comes to make sure she's being taken care of and looked after....when I do her laundry he watches me, he doesn't like me messing with her delicates (lol). I've gotten videos of ghostly apparitions and orbs...it's like they're always here even during the day, it don't matter. A few months ago she collapsed. I believed she was going to pass away but she recovered....then a couple weeks ago she collapsed again.....and once more regained her strength. Funny thing about it all, the night before she collapsed this last time, the atmosphere was very active with orbs.I took a video in her bedroom and caught very active orbs moving amongst the room. Usually I just see one in her room, but it's becoming active like when her husband passed. It leaves me to believe her time is becoming short. There is an older teddy bear in the home too. It has a spirit living in it....I've got several pictures and some videos of the orb responding to me when I talk to the teddy bear. One night while on my 24 hour shift, I was in the daughter's bedroom where I sleep resting on the bed reading, and the light on the nightstand next to the bed flickered, and then went out. I then immediately got my phone and stood at the doorway and asked the spirit to turn the light back on for me, just as the light turns back on you see there's an orb that goes by the lamp. So many tales of the spiritual paranormal I could tell. Thanks for the time
